“‘They desire a better country’ is what Joyce Bryant is all about.”

— Garth Hampson

“As secretary to the Right Honourable Vincent Massey, and later as the first employee of the Order of Canada honours secretariat, Mrs. Bryant played an important, although subtle, role in the development of our national honours system.”

— Christopher McCreery

“A fascinating memoir of a most gracious lady, filled with amusing anecdotes and modest notes of her many successes. Her career gave her access to those who shaped the course of our country, but we soon discover that this is of less importance to her than enduring friendships and an unshakeable faith.

— Margaret D. Bell, Past President,
May Court Club of Ottawa
